Review PWG Patent Policy

Lee reminded everyone of the PWG Patent Policy, and provided the following information:

- PWG standards may include the known use of essential patents and patent applications provided the PWG Chair receives assurance from the patent holder or applicant with respect to patents whose infringement is, or in the case of patent applications, potential future infringement the applicant asserts will be, unavoidable in a compliant implementation of either mandatory or optional portions of the standard. This assurance shall be provided without coercion. This assurance shall be either:
 - a) A general disclaimer to the effect that the patentee will not enforce any of its present or future patent(s) whose use would be required to implement either mandatory or optional portions of the proposed PWG standard against any person or entity complying with the standard; or
 - b) A statement that a license for such implementation will be made available without compensation or under reasonable rates, with reasonable terms and conditions that are demonstrably free of any unfair discrimination.
- The PWG is not in a position to give authoritative or comprehensive information about evidence, validity or scope of patents or similar rights, but it is desirable that any available information should be disclosed. Therefore, all PWG members shall, from the outset, draw PWG's attention to any relevant patents either their own or of other organizations including their Affiliates that are known to the PWG members or any of their Affiliates, although PWG is unable to verify the validity of any such information.

He also listed several inappropriate topics for the PWG WG meetings:

- Don't discuss the validity/essentiality of patents/patent claims
 - Don't discuss the cost of specific patent use
 - Don't discuss licensing terms or conditions
 - Don't discuss product pricing, territorial restrictions, or market share
 - Don't discuss ongoing litigation or threatened litigation
- Don't be silent if inappropriate topics are discussed

... do formally object.

Google Chrome OS – Print Driver Overload?

Lee Farrell explained that the Printer Working Group had recently been made aware of an article titled “One of Google Chrome OS's hardest tasks? Printing”

Subsequently the PWG had taken action to try and contact Google via a letter drafted by the PWG Steering Committee, to the Google engineering manager mentioned in the article, and delivered via a fax from the PWG Secretary to Google. Also PWG member Bill Wagner had tried to make contact with Google on behalf of PWG by sending an e-mail response to the author of the article.

In both cases, the purpose was to reach out to Google, in order to let them know that a standards body focusing on printing issues in networked computing environments was available to help them develop a modern robust printing solution tailored to the specific requirements of cloud computing environments.

Lee promised to keep the membership updated as to whether the cloud computing environment might hold some new standards work for the PWG to consider undertaking in the coming months.

PWG Working Group Status

In the interests of time, the WG Status slides were only briefly reviewed, because the attendees were already aware of the information. Non-attendees can obtain the information at:

Rick Landau – Dell Finishing His Current Work With PWG

Rick Landau mentioned that he would be working on new projects in the coming year and that he would not be representing Dell within the PWG in 2010. He then introduced two new colleagues from Dell, attending the PWG meeting with him, who would be taking over the PWG participation duties from him in 2010.

All of the members in attendance at the Plenary session thanked Rick for organizing the current PWG meeting at Dell and for his significant contribution to PWG standards creation during the years he had been the Dell representative to the PWG.

PWG Plenary adjourned.
